Mark Ronchetti Raised More Money Than Ben Ray Lujan in 3rd Quarter

Ronchetti's Q3 Funds are 85% from New Mexico, While Lujan only has 25% from New Mexico

Albuquerque, NM - Mark Ronchetti's U.S. Senate campaign announced today that he raised more money in the 3rd Quarter than Ben Ray Lujan's out-of-state funded campaign. Ronchetti's campaign raised 85% of their Q3 funds from New Mexico, while Ben Ray only raised 25% of his Q3 funds from New Mexico. Despite their out-of-state money flow, the Lujan campaign raised less money than the Ronchetti campaign in Q3.

"I'm proud of our campaign focusing on New Mexico and humbled by the support that has poured in from across our state," said U.S. Senate nominee Mark Ronchetti. "I'm running to put New Mexico first, not special interests from D.C. and California."

Ronchetti's campaign highlighted the discrepancy between their campaign war chest with Ben Ray Lujan's, who has more donors from California, New York, and Washington than from New Mexico.

"Mark outraising 12-year Congressman Lujan and his out-of-state money shows the power of the people of New Mexico. Mark is continuing to put the people of New Mexico over the politics of D.C., with 85% of campaign donations coming from New Mexican donors," said Ronchetti's Campaign Manager Jeff Glassburner. "Meanwhile, only 25% of Ben Ray Lujan's money in the third quarter came from New Mexico. Mark is running a grassroots campaign on the issues important to the people of New Mexico, while Ben Ray's campaign is funded by out-of-state liberals and continues to rake in special interest D.C. PAC money."
