

Real Issues. Real People. Real New Mexico.

In this week's episode of Inside New Mexico, Steve talks about:

- How the pandemic would have been handled in a Pearce Administration.
- Pork and wasteful spending in the $1.9 trillion federal stimulus bill.
- The dangers of continued borrowing in Washington.
- The value of financial literacy classes.
- The importance of trade jobs.
- The need to exempt tax on social security income.
- The need to limit the Governor's powers in a health emergency.

- Steve then talks with KKOB radio host Brandon Vogt about Rep. Deb Haaland's Cabinet nomination and the damage she'd impose on the oil and gas industry, key bills in the legislature and Donald Trump's appearance at CPAC.
- Steve also speaks with Mike Shinabery of KRSY in Alamogordo about criminalizing legal behavior. And Inside New Mexico host Derek Underhill interviews a New Mexico food truck business owner about the frustrations of state regulations and the current poor business climate in New Mexico.
