

Real Issues. Real People. Real New Mexico.

In this week's episode of Inside New Mexico, Steve talks about:

- President Biden's $3.5 trillion spending plan.
- The Navajo Nation's opposition to that spending legislation.
- The struggle between moderate and progressive Democrats in Washington.
- How Vice President Harris caused a stir with Israel.
- How the Biden Administration has pandered to the Taliban.
- How progressives are hurting the U.S. job market.
- Why Virginia's gubernatorial race is telling.

How green energy policies are hurting economies here and abroad.

And host Derek Underhill interviews Anita Statman, Republican Party of New Mexico CD-3 Vice Chair, about the Public Education Department's proposed changes in the state's social studies curriculum. Statman addresses how those plans would include Critical Race Theory teachings and other progressive instruction in public schools. She talks about the dangers of this curriculum and the importance of preventing it from becoming an integral part of New Mexico's classroom instruction.
