

Real Issues. Real People. Real New Mexico.

In this week's episode of Inside New Mexico, Steve talks about:

- The U.S. Supreme Court hearing on abortion.
- Trump's appointments of judgeships.
- The latest international travel ban.
- How the media is a mouthpiece for Democrats.
- The ATF's push to change gun registration rules.
- President Biden's call to change how oil companies pay for drilling on federal land and how that plan would hurt New Mexico and consumers.
- How inflation is hurting farmers.
- The tensions between Taiwan and China.
- A New Mexico town that's encouraging people to be armed at council meetings.
- The vaccine mandates across the nation.

Host Derek Underhill then talks with Dinah Vargas, a radio host and former state Representative candidate, about how more Hispanics and Democrats are turning to the Republican Party. She talks about what motivated her to change parties.
