Governor to travel out of state for DGA meeting, national health summit

Gov. Michelle Lujan Grisham is traveling to New Orleans today to attend an annual meeting of the Democratic Governors Association, for which she previously served as chair.

The governor will then travel to Washington, D.C., on Sunday for meetings with members of Congress on Monday.

On Monday, Gov. Lujan Grisham will travel to Philadelphia for the 2022 Bloomberg American Health Summit, where the governor will deliver a keynote address on Tuesday focused on her administration's efforts to combat poverty and hunger in addressing social determinants of health in New Mexico.

The governor is currently scheduled to return to New Mexico on December 6. The governor's schedule is subject to change.
