Mark Ronchetti Follows the Science in New Ad

Ronchetti's Ad Responds to False Advertising from the Lujan Campaign

Albuquerque, NM – Today, Republican U.S. Senate candidate Mark Ronchetti released his next ad of the general election. The new ad from the Ronchetti campaign responds to false allegations from the Lujan campaign. Mark lays out how we need leaders who will follow the science, and not play politics.

“To recover we need leaders who will follow the science and work together, not play politics and tear us apart,” said Mark Ronchetti. “As your next Senator, I won’t play the political games that prevent New Mexicans from getting the relief they need during these trying times.”

Ronchetti’s campaign also shared the record of Ben Ray Lujan on this issue.

“Mark Ronchetti has spent his career in science, while Ben Ray Lujan has spent his career in politics. Luján refused to do what’s best for the people of New Mexico by working in a bipartisan way to pass meaningful COVID relief. Instead, he’s voted for legislation which releases violent criminals from prison, gives tax breaks to New York billionaires, and gives cash payments to illegal immigrants,” said Campaign Manager Jeff Glassburner. “Mark, unlike Congressman Lujan, will always work for the people of New Mexico instead of D.C. special interests.”

The commercial is running on broadcast stations across New Mexico.
