

RPNM: ALEXIS JOHNSON WILL BRING PROGRESS AND SOUND GOVERNMENT AS SANTA FE'S NEXT MAYOR

JOHNSON'S VISION AND CONSERVATIVE PLATFORM WILL LEAD TO GENUINE PROGRESS IN THE CAPITAL CITY

Albuquerque, May 6—Today Alexis Johnson announced her candidacy to become the next mayor of Santa Fe, and the Republican Party of New Mexico supports any conservative candidate who will help bring real progress to the city in this non-partisan race.

Johnson's message resonates across party lines, and she is a strong advocate for public safety and economic growth. A native New Mexican and a Santa Fe resident, Johnson will be a strong conservative voice and will work hard to seek bipartisan solutions to make the capital city a better place to live and work.

Johnson will revitalize Santa Fe as mayor with fiscal responsibility, a pro-business agenda and as a leader who is sensitive to the vast culture and history of the city. She is running for mayor because she loves Santa Fe and wants to move the city forward through bipartisanship.

"Alexis ran a strong Congressional campaign in the 3rd District last year, and she has a true understanding of the key issues affecting the people in Santa Fe," said Republican Party of New Mexico Chairman Steve Pearce. "She believes in the potential of the city, will govern with a sensible and informed approach and will listen to the citizens of Santa Fe. Her experience and wealth of knowledge will make her a vibrant leader that will translate into real progress for the city.”

The mayoral election is November 2.
