

Free Electronic-Waste Collection at Buckman Road Recycling and Transfer Station Saturday, October 2

September 22, 2021 -- The Santa Fe Solid Waste Management Agency is hosting a free electronic (e-waste) collection drive-thru event for Santa Fe City and County residents at the Buckman Road Recycling and Transfer Station (BuRRT) on Saturday, October 2, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The drive-thru format lets you stay in your vehicle while trained staff unloads the e-waste from your trunk or pickup bed. E-waste is electronic equipment that is near or at the end of its useful life. Certain components of e-waste contain toxic materials such as lead, mercury and cadmium. E-waste should not be disposed with regular trash.

To prevent the spread of COVID-19, all residents must:

- Wear a mask or face covering.
- Stay in their vehicle.
- Place their e-waste in the trunk/pickup bed for trained staff to unload it.
- Limit to one trip.

Acceptable e-waste includes:

- Computers, keyboards, mice, cables
- Monitors, televisions
- Cords
- Laptops, printers, scanners
- Telephones
- Cell phones, tablets, cameras
- Gaming systems and stereo equipment
- Small appliances, microwaves, toasters

Do not bring:

- Rear-projection televisions
- Large CRT televisions
- Batteries
- Lightbulbs, fluorescent bulbs
- Smoke alarms
- Large appliances, refrigerators, stoves, washers, dryers
- Household hazardous waste, paints, motor oils, chemicals

E-waste from businesses will not be accepted.

E-waste mixed with trash, household hazardous waste or green waste will be subject to a tipping fee.
