

River Trail Repair Work to Resume on Monday, October 31

The Santa Fe River Repairs and Bank Stabilization Project will resume Monday, October 31, 2022.

The work on this restoration project requires the use of heavy machinery with limited visibility.

Community members are advised to stay out of the active construction site and areas with restricted access, respect all signs and warnings posted, and maintain awareness of their surroundings while recreating in the area.

This work is a continuation of two phases of repairs intended to remediate the damage caused by extreme storm flows seen in the 2018 500-year storm. The work was paused during the spring/summer 2022 Living River releases.

Questions? Contact Zoe Isaacson, Acting River and Watershed Manager: zisaacson@santafenm.gov