PICTURE ME ROLLING, IN THESE WHEELS Feature Documentary

June 7, 2023 - "Picture Me Rolling, In These Wheels" is a collaborative effort between Marc Anthony Romero, and filmmakers Jeff Gonzales, Lucas CorVatta and Bronson Dunphy. Marc being the subject of the documentary, is also an integral member of the team, both with creative influence and musical direction. The team's objective is to produce a feature documentary which showcases Marc's amazing life, as musician, Grammy Nominated Song-Writer, showing all this is possible in spite of his day to day struggles of living with AMC. With all of Marc's obstacles and health challenges he remains an optimistic and caring person who treats everyone with equality and respect.

The documentary is currently in development, with the help from the Santa Fe Independent Film Club and launching a crowdfunding campaign to pay for production expenses, with plans to film in Albuquerque, Houston, Miami and Las Vegas, Nevada.

Marc, was born with AMC (Arthrogryposis Multiplex Congenita), leaving him a quadriplegic. Despite his challenges and without the use of his hands, he has written many songs by holding a pen in his mouth. Although being born with limitations, his parents treated him like his other siblings, teaching him to never hold back and encouraging him to follow his dreams.

While attending Valley High School in Albuquerque, New Mexico, Marc Anthony Romero found his passion and self-expression in music, which helped him pen the song, "Que Bonita". Los Texmaniacs Cruzando Borders album Best Regional Mexican Music which was ultimately nominated for a Grammy. Marc credits some of his success to living in "Old Town" Albuquerque, a neighborhood where he liked to cruise "to feel the vibe", often times "finding a rhythm in the pulse of the city and lyrics in her streets." Recipient of the New Mexico Spirit Awards, inspired him to continue his passion of music, and give back to his community by telling his journey to youth and other disabled individuals.
